

Baro-Bhuiyam

After the Afghan rule ended in Bengal but before the Mughal power took over, different military leaders, local chiefs called bhuiyans ~~and~~ controlled different areas of Bengal. Taking the whole of Bengal into consideration, the number of bhuiyans must have been many more than twelve.

Soha kha was the ^{leader} of Barabhuiyan and zamindar of Sonargaon. Emperor Akbar sent his soldiers several times to conquer the

Bengal but they could not defeat
Jha kham and zamindars.
